

Chapter-8

So a very happy new year my babyyy, we've stepped into the month of January, your boyfriend's birthday month and damn was the first of this month mad mad hot, like damn for real. Has to be one of our hottest months, hopefully something surpassed your audiobook experience from this month, but yeah for me, it was super hot and super exciting. I had to return on like 8th or 9th, so that happened and then the secret Instagram ID of my babyyy was passed over to me and that birthday present was really really memorable my babyyy, I kinda had guessed that you was cooking up something for me on that ID but not to that scale, so that was a super cute gesture, I have always felt that I was unable to thank you the right amount or show my gratefulness enough for that gesture but I really really loved it my loveeee. This was also the month where we three went out for pizza. I even remember the pizza name, it was 'Burn To Hell', it was a really fun day, ughhh could have been more if I had got the chance to sit back with you. You checked my phone completely that day, we talked a bit about your questions from it later and it was really cute for you to be doing that because that really showed some kind of possessiveness again which I am really fond of. You know like I didn't want that day to end at all, like by no means. It was such a fun day, from this I remember you slamming the door of the cab on the day of our date, the driver told to me politely about that, cute but I really want another day like that it was pretty fun and valuable because days like that don't come very often and I really want to cherish such moments. By the end of this month like around the meet-up time, like after it, your mom and sister had went to Himachal and I saw an opportunity in it, I for real felt that you didn't try enough to make that day happen, like for real I was kinda disappointed, I mean like I understood your points but still you know, that was possible not holding any grudges or something but yeah that was a bit of possibility I felt and we could have planned something real good. I really want to make memories with you in real life. Huh! Iloveeyouuumybabyyy!!!