

Chapter-5

So now we on the month of October and maybe the most standout thing from this month is when you got mad turned on by the rally of voice messages that I had sent you, it was yet again the afternoon time, I got to know that you was mad turned on later on but yeah I too did sense that I bit myself when in that moment, I'm again not totally sure of this and the previous month but there was a lot to explore in these months, I mean others too but these months were like the beginnings of something deeper you know, something that we have today, all these months had a whole lot of photos, revelations and more importantly the growth in understanding, I don't know what much to talk about this month, it was pretty much similar and of no such big big event, everything went quite like a you know highway, pretty butter like, nothing too eventful but also nothing got messy. So, this month we're now like talking about who all we tell and who all we don't, we just get that question tossed around and just ignore it because its nothing of an importance. Those Wednesdays became pretty exciting though, like really really and also I guess this was the month where I started to touch myself to you. I pretty much don't remember a whole lot of stuff but enough to have a small short chapters written out of them. Combining these two months, we grew closer and closer and the foundation just kept getting laid. I in these months started to understand more about how much you want me to be there for and with you, these were the times where I started to understand stuff more about us and even within myself a need for you started to grow heavy, fast and like how all it has been since the beginning, intense. These chapters all combined will probably stand equal to a single chapter of an actual novel but I promise you will love these better, even better than the ones in your Mr. Hale novel, hopefully. Iloveeyouumybabyyy!